

for sale

Posted by rd7839 - 10 May 2008 08:22

This car is in my neck of the woods. I really don't have anywhere to store it but I can take a look at it for someone if they are interested.

Ron

sacramento.craigslist.org/car/673113281.html

Re:for sale

Posted by Litespeeds - 10 May 2008 09:32

Doesn't look like it is worth buying. Doesn't even have Cookie Cutter wheels either.

Re:for sale

Posted by rlofgren - 12 May 2008 04:00

i see at least $700 in parts there, but i have no space right now. : -

Re:for sale

Posted by Litespeeds - 12 May 2008 04:45

This would be a better deal to buy as a parts car or made into a 944 Spec car.

sfbay.craigslist.org/nby/car/675663400.html

My buddy drove out there today thinking it was fairly clean, from the looks of the pictures, but the paint is definitely faded and the interior is not that clean either. The motor could have a broken timing belt as it does not currently run but everything is in tact. Body is in fair condition with dents here and there. Side mirrors are not in good condition and might need to be replaced. Overall not bad because he was going to buy it for only $400. Way better than the one listed above.

Re:for sale

Posted by Sterling Doc - 12 May 2008 05:21

I would pay $350 (shipped) for the late offset wheels, and aluminum A-arms, if someone wants to get this and sell the parts. The motor would also be good as a spare, especially if it's an '88 (high compression pistons are worth more than $350 alone) Though it's pretty rough, I'd pick it up in a heartbeat if it were closer.
