

Hi New guy here

Posted by clubks - 30 Dec 2013 10:58

---

I dont know if this is the correct spot to post but i just kinda wanted to introduce myself, The name is Jonathan i am 23 & i just bought my first 944 which is in the porcess of being gutted. I dont really have experience racing door slammers i been go karting for 8 years and seeing how much open wheel racing cost & well testing just to begin with is expensive so i decided to get into the 944 bug.

So again i just wanted to say "hey" lol. Also i know it's cheaper to buy a spec car, but just know i do my own mechanic work & i work at a shop that does welding plus instead of using the money for the spec car i ve had my eye sight on the Skip Barber racing school in Monterey. So hope to see you guys at the track soon.

=====

Re: Hi New guy here

Posted by cbuzzetti - 05 Jan 2014 17:11

---

Welcome to the fun Jonathan!

Hey guys did you notice that he said he has been karting for 8 years?

Maybe this is Tylers protoge.

Jonathan have you been racing karts or just playing in them?

Be sure to ask away with any questions on the So-Cal board or in the regular board.

Tons of info already available online.

We have a great group in So-Cal who can help with any issues on or off the track.

Looking forward to meeting you at the track.

=====

Re: Hi New guy here

Posted by tcomeau - 14 Jan 2014 14:58

---

Welcome Jonathon.

You'll get lots of help on this board. Your 944 looks kinda nice to tear up, huh?

You can find/buy a junker chassis for pretty cheap.

Good luck and look forward to meeting you.

=====

---

Re: Hi New guy here

Posted by clubks - 14 Jan 2014 15:30

---

Thanks for the welcome guys yes i been eyeing nasa for sometime ill defintly be doing an outing, & yea been karting on a swiss hutless 100cc Yami motor in mexico it aint no Tony kart but it was defintly competitive series. My goal to be quite honest is to race in the pacific Formula Ford series in so cal but money is a little as far as open wheel goes but none the less its a goal for the futre. It is a little to nice to tear up but the damage has been done lol

=====

Re: Hi New guy here

Posted by clubks - 14 Jan 2014 15:49

---

Re: Hi New guy here

Posted by clubks - 14 Jan 2014 15:51

---