Buttonwillow
Posted by rd7839 - 23 Feb 2015 08:00

_____

Hey guys,

I plan on invading your turf for the April Buttonwillow event and since it's been many moons since I've been there(15 years at least)and then only in hpde I have a few questions.

Usually I camp at the track and I see they have rv spots with electricity. My trailers not very well insulated so I need my heater, plus I need my tv so I don't miss my Real Housewives of Beverly Hills! How early do I need to reserve a spot or is it easier to just stay at Motel 6? Is it better staying at the motels off highway 58 or since I'm coming from the north off highway 46?

Thanks guys and I'll hopefully see you in April.

Ron Dale

==

Re: Buttonwillow
Posted by cbuzzetti - 24 Feb 2015 21:30

_____

Ron just call the track and reserve a spot. Your trailer is way nicer than tne local hotels.

i should have some videos posted online at Youtube bajabuzz1 of Buttonwillow. I ammore than happy to help with setup and track advise. Not sure which car I will be racing yet but either way we will be on track together.

our grouping is usually SM, E30 and 944. Usually works out well with split starts for each class.

==

Re: Buttonwillow
Posted by Atteberry - 24 Feb 2015 21:37

_____

Cbuzz is right your trailer iceboater than the local hotel's Look forward to seeing you there.

==

Re: Buttonwillow
Posted by Atteberry - 24 Feb 2015 21:38

_____

ouch that did not come out right it should read your trailer is much better than the local hotels

==

Re: Buttonwillow
Posted by dancing944 - 01 Apr 2015 16:22

_____

Okay gang. So who is going to Buttonwillow April 18/19? We have an endurance race that night, and I've already heard from a couple teams who will have their 944 Spec cars there. Should be a good time.

Everett

==

Re: Buttonwillow
Posted by jivenjim - 03 Apr 2015 08:22

_____

Simon and I will be running Enduro (Team Jiven-Loco)+ normal. Mary has broken Rib so I don't think she is driving.

Richmond is out for family event.

==